

Drop that mouse!

Tara Merrin
Calgary Sun

February 23, 2006

Calgary dating expert Christine Hart has some advice for people looking for that special someone — get off the computer and start meeting people face-to-face.

The president of Six Minute Dates, a local speed dating company, says you will never know if you have found your match until you meet him/her in person.

"People love our events because they are chemistry-focused. We all have an idea of who we are looking for, but we need more opportunities to find that special someone," says Hart.

Held at a local coffeehouse twice a week, the event brings 10 to 14 singles of the opposite gender together for a series of six minute dates. "You let us know after the event who you would like to have another conversation with and, if they also choose you, we give you each others e-mail address," says Hart.

"It's quick and to the point because you know everyone else is on the same page and there isn't any guesswork as to whether or not they are single or looking."

Over the past four years, the matchmaking service has been responsible for more than 30 marriages and engagements, adds Hart.

For more information, go to www.sixminutedates.com

Click HERE for the DATE DOCTOR ARCHIVE